Hondkova, February 6tr, 1386.

Ar the last meeting of the Legislative Council the unofficial members made out a The MAPS and PLANS have been mostly good case against the practice at present followed of requiring wooden paddle wheel of inspection. The Hon. W. Keswick is of opinion that the matter is one dependent solely on the interpretation and application of the existing law. The Acrine Governor entertains an opposite opinion, viz., that the defect, if defect it be, is in the law itself and not in the mere interpretation of it. His Excellency is, we think, right to this extent, that under the Ordinance as it stands he deviation from the existing practice without authority from the Secretary of State for the Colonies. The Ordinance directs that vessels shall be surveyed, but does not prescribe in detail in what way 6 of section 5 it is provided that "the mentioned shall be made." Now the Govcretary of State, and if he has been directed ance with the rules of the Board of Trade those rules must be followed until some contrary direction is given. The Hon. P. we have to do with that establishment? The Board of Trade, as such, has certainly no voice in the matter, but if the rules of that Board are adopted by the Colonial Office and sent out here to be followed in surveys made under the Merchant Shipping Ordinance they then, according to our interpretation of the Pedder's Wharf at 2.30. Act, become binding. And it will be generally admitted that it is desirable there should be, as far as possible, uniformity in the law with regard to shipping throughout the British dominions, including the manner of making surveys, but with such modifications and exceptions as the local circumstances of any particular place may require. According to the Attorney-General's reading of those rules, it is compulsory on the marine surveyors to follow the practice | boat was bilged. The bulwarks were stove in. now in vogue with regard to the particularclass of steamers about which the question German barque Hydra, which arrived here has been raised as well as with regard to other classes. We cannot, however, assent to the doctrine enunciated by the Attorney-General in the following sentence: - "Now what I would suggest is that if the Government has taken on itself to make these surveys, and make them as a guarantee to the public of the safety of the ship, it ought to from the N.E. to Pulo Sapatu, from whence had the Board of Trade see fit to make some modification in favour of ships of this de- when a N.E. and E. gale set in with heavy sea, scription the existing law should remain as which continued for the last two days.—The it is." Mr. GLADSTONE'S new Government cannot be pronounced a strong one, even by his warmest adherents. With one or two exceptions the Cabinet is chiefly conspicuous on Thursday, the 4th inst., had to be postponed by the absence of the most distinguished of Liberal and Radical politicians. Lords HAB-TINGTON, CALLINGFORD, and DERBY, Messta. GOSCHEN, FORSTER, BRIGHT, CHAMBERLAIN, DILKE, and Sir Henry James, almost the only names with which the Liberal and Radical parties can conjure, are all missing. The present Cabinet consists of a few respectable mediocrities-two of whom at least are unpopular even with their own partyand two or three comparatively untried menlike Lord Rosenery and Mr. John Morley. The latter represents the Radical wing of the party, but we doubt whether he has any following; certainly his influence will not avail much against that of Messrs, Chamberlain and Dilke, who have evidently declined to have part or lot in a Government doomed to early defeat. The appointment of Mr. in lat. 4.30 long. 106 E. observed a large junk Morkey to the post of Chief Secretary for Ireland is an indication of the Irish policy stopped, when a boat came alongside and stated for Newcastle-on-Tyne has openly avowed himself in favour of such across the playing and the juntor member about their boat withwater; and he is improving steadily every day he will again himself in favour of such across are in the proving steadily every day he will again himself in favour of such concessions to Mr. PARNELL as the Irish will accept—i.e., the establishment of an Irish Parliament. A Editor, not for publication, but as evidence of good few more posts remain to be filled, but the list announced by Router is sufficiently comdefections from the ranks of the Grand Old Man's followers.

ANNUAL BANQUET)OF THE HONG-KONG SUGAR REFINING TRADE.

sugar refluction in Hougkong, feeling that they had become quite a community in this colony decided to unite together for one of those social gatherings which are common among those en-gaged in the same industry at home. There is a feeling of fellowship among this small community which it would be difficult to find equalled among any other class. This arises to a large extent from the fact that nearly all of them hall from the same place, and in the old country have been familiar with the same scenes, or perhaps the same persons. Greenock is the great seat of the sugar refining industry in England, and there are few Europeans employed at the three refineries in this colony who do not claim that thriving town as their home. They are follow countrymen, fellow townsmen; and fellow workmen, and in a place so far remote from the old associations these things form a bend which draw them close together in their sympathics, and it is not surprising that the first celebration organised by them on the model of their home gatherings should have been attended with the most signal success, and that it should have been so pleasant a rounion that it was decided afterwards to ondearour to make it an annual event. Last year the Chinese New Year's eve was the occasion of the first celebration, which took place at the Victoria Hotel. Everything went off with a success be youd the expectations of those concerned, and it was determined to have similar gatherings in future years. This year the committee, with the object of distributing their patronage, went to the Hongkorg Hotel, where Mr. Greeley placed at their disposal the reading room and ante-room attached, on the first floor. In this room a long table was placed along the centre with a cross table at the head. and a dinner was served, in the style for that establishment is noted, that deserves more than a passing notice, as besides including all the delicacies of an ordinary first class dinner, the menu contained items which carried the thoughts of the Scots present back to their native place. (Hear, hear). It seemed to him these events speke volumes for the harmony and good fellowship prevailing among those engaged in this industry. However much they might have to fight against each other in the interests of the respective companies which employed them, they could still, for one night enjoy themselves in a manner which would lead them to be oblivious of the fact Mother Seigel intimated to them, that "Over the Sunshine of Existence Hangs a Dark Cloud." (Laughterand applause). He trusted they would be none the worse for that evening's enjoyment, or that if they felt any effects the next day they would not be "Treated for the Wrong Complaint." (Renewed laughter). He was very pleased to see the sugar refining industry so well represented there that evening, and he thought it was a pity they could not have more opportunities of spending a few pleasant hours together. The Voltaire tells a story of a certain fatal mined, though a Commission has been appointed ring worn by the late King of Spain. Amongst the presents which Don Alfonso gave to his first wife. Donna Mercedes, there was a magnificent ring, ornamented with a large black pearl encircled with diamonds. The Queen were it until the day of her death. The young King, after the loss of his first wife, presented the ring to his sister, the Infanta Piler, who were it until she died. The superstitions may easily have suspected, in such a land as Spain, that the ring itself was not wholly unconnected with the rapidly successive deaths of the two beautiful young ladies who had worn it. The King would not give it to a third lady, but he wore it himself until he also died. Queen Christina, who drew the ring from the finger of the dead monarch, debated for a while whether she would herself wear it in memory of him or would place it amongst the historic family jewels. She decided to take the latter course.

· With the uncertainty of life is mingled the breath of life that tells of an addition to our mighty voice of the Great Influence which rules the Universe has pronounced our fate; the dread Hongkong and Whampon Dock Company's stinct prompts us to fight the boldest battle we can for this glorious boon of existence. The promptings of instinct are but the spontaneous voices of nature, and it is our duty to obey. But there still remains the question, can death be postponed by a single hour? Yes; for the world works in obedience to certain laws; and a study of these proves that those who have the judgment and the will to buckle on the shield, which A letter from Alexandria in the Indépendance nature places ready to their grasp, may ward off the insidious attacks of the implacable enemy of life, until, in a ripe old age, the vital faculties gradually decay, and the Angel of Peace glides softly into our presence, leading us, as it were, in a gentle slumber to the regions beyond the
